State C. E. Convention Opens In Fullerton Tomorrow

EXPECT 7000 KIDNAPERS SENTENCED TO SERVE 45 YEARS

AIMEE PLANS TO BE MARRIED FOURTH TIME

United Press Learns That Homer Rodeheaver to Marry Evangelist

THE VANGUARD of the 7000 delegates expected to be in Fullerton for the duration of the State Christian Endeavor society convention began arriving today, as preparations for their entertainment were completed by the committee of 300 which is working out arrangements.

The first general convention session will be held at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow night in the convention hall at the Fullerton Union High school. Prior to the general session will be denominational rallies by Fullerton churches, held in the gymnasiums, study halls, science building, choral hall, music hall, and the Christian and Presbyterian church.

The convention, which is expected to be the largest in the 58 years of state unions, will be under the direction of Dr. William Wickett, general chairman. The Orange county C. E. Union will host to the many young people who will visit Fullerton. For many years the C. E. convention has been the state's largest, it was reported.

Services will be held throughout the day Sunday, with church services at various churches of the city, with guest pastors occupying pulpits, and convention services in the afternoon and evening. The convention will close Tuesday evening, after continuous sessions 14 hours daily for the duration of the convention.

ATTEMPTS SUICIDE IN HOMICIDE COURT

NEW YORK, June 21.—(UP)— In keeping with the bizarre slaying of his wife and wounding of the man he believed to be her lover, Peter Christ, 32, ripped two poison tablets from his coat lining in homicide court today and gulped them down. He is expected to recover.

Christ's spectacular act in court showed the same cunning that he displayed in forcing his way into his wife's apartment, killing her and setting up a home-made electric chair allegedly to torture and kill a man who admitted himself to the apartment later. The intended victim escaped by a desperate dash for the door, but was wounded.

VALENCIA SHIPMENTS FROM ORANGE COUNTY IN MAY FAR AHEAD OF THOSE LAST YEAR

VOLUME OF Orange county and other California oranges shipped to both foreign and domestic markets aggregating 7760 cars, was unusually large in May, it was learned in a statement received today by The Register from the California Fruit Growers Exchange.

The volume in May was more than twice as much as in May of last year, and one-quarter larger than the average for May in the past four years, and was larger than any preceding May with the exception of 1929, when 7928 cars were shipped.

It was announced that the heavy movement was expedited by bumper production of oranges in Orange county and California, coupled with lighter than usual competition from citrus and other produce was even more pronounced.

Sales in domestic markets continued in exceptionally large volume throughout the month, despite very unfavorable climatic conditions. In many sections, distribution was severely restricted by rains and floods, while chilly weather over the entire country retarded the development of oranges.

DIRECTORS ELECTED BY ROTARY PARLEY

MEXICO CITY, June 21.—(UP)— Directors, five of them Americans, were elected by the Rotary International organization yesterday.

The Americans are: Emmet Richards, editor and owner of the Alpena, Mich., Daily News; Edward F. McFadden, attorney, Hope, Arkansas; George W. Olinger, undertaker, Denver; Dr. Amos O. Squires, physician, New York City, and Charles L. Wheeler, steamship operator, San Francisco.

ASKED TO LAY CORNERSTONE

President Franklin D. Roosevelt, who will be asked by the city council, to lay the cornerstone for the new city hall. Councilman Joe Smith will introduce the resolution at the meeting of the city council next Monday night. Smith conceived the idea of having the president come here and the council will delay cornerstone laying ceremonies to suit Roosevelt's convenience.

DANIEL ROPERONE KILLED IN RAPS MITCHELL EUREKA STRIKE FRAUD CHARGES RIOTING TODAY

WASHINGTON, June 21.—(UP)— Rioting and bloodshed of the Pacific Northwest lumber strike crept across the California-Oregon boundary today when one man was killed, several others wounded and six policemen beaten in a strike riot at the Holmes Eureka Lumber mill on California's famous Redwood highway.

"Instead of receiving the cooperation needed in the difficult task of building this road," Kellogg said today, "political differences of opinion forced my father to forego his plans."

"In spite of politics that entered into this particular development," Kellogg said, "we would have been using the lower route for the past 20 years had not a disastrous flood turned the tide against him. He was defeated in trying to render his engineering project to the public, and there is no question but that the public has carried an unnecessary and heavy burden for the past 20 years."

COL. LINDBERGH, IN ROLE OF SCIENTIST, COLLABORATES IN BUILDING HEART, LUNG DEVICE

NEW YORK, June 21.—(UP)—An article in Science Magazine today revealed Col. Charles A. Lindbergh as a collaborator in one of the most important biological achievements of many years.

Signed by Lindbergh and Dr. Alexis Carrel, the article announced development of a mechanical means of keeping animal organs alive and functioning outside the body. Physiologists had attempted the feat unsuccessfully for almost a century.

Scientists called the accomplishment extremely important because it will enable medical students to watch the action of disease under laboratory conditions and might simplify the attempt to manufacture artificially the mysterious and vital hormones. Other possibilities suggested were almost unending.

The device was perfected in laboratories of the Rockefeller Institute, where Dr. Carrel is a staff member. Lindbergh participated in its development as a student and was said to have had a large part in developing mechanical phases of the work.

Elementally the mechanism is a pump. It provides blood and air for any organ placed in it, such as the heart, kidneys, thyroids and suprarenal glands. Lindbergh and Carrel said organs maintained in its germ proof chamber eventually have grown new tissue. Dr. Carrel previously had perfected a device which kept simple tissues alive—he has one living bit of a chicken which he killed in 1912.

—but he had not previously been able to maintain entire organs.

The "blood" pumped through body parts placed in the artificial "heart" is laboratory made, composed principally of protein-split products with a portion of blood serum. Air in the chamber is richer in oxygen than the outside atmosphere.

YOUTH PAYS DEATH PENALTY AT FOLSOM

FOLSOM PRISON, Calif., June 21.—(UP)—Aldrich Welsford Lutz, 19-year-old Portland, Ore., dairy worker, went calmly to his death on the gallows today for the murder of Frank D. Angermeier, 62, of Dunsmuir.

The trap was sprung at 10:02 a.m. and the youth was pronounced dead at 10:14.

Resigned to his fate and apparently willing to die because he killed a man who befriended him, Lutz made no last-minute plea for clemency. He previously had notified Gov. Frank F. Merriam that he preferred to die and did not want any stays of execution. The state supreme court denied his appeal and the governor declined to intervene.

Should the plan be carried out, it will be a state highway project with underpass funds coming from the federal government's grade separation allocation, and will provide easy truck access to the entire railroad industrial district from the woolen mills on East Washington avenue to First street.

Carrying out of this project, if from Miraflores to West Anaheim.

COUNCILMAN SMITH TO INTRODUCE RESOLUTION AT MEETING ON MONDAY

Plans Call for Erection of Platform At Third and Main Streets With Radio and Speaker Hookup

By WAYNE GOBLE

FRANKLIN DELANO ROOSEVELT, president of the United States, probably will lay the cornerstone for Santa Ana's new city hall building while en route to San Diego to visit the Exposition this summer.

This fact became known today when Joseph P. Smith, city councilman, confirmed a report that efforts are being made to obtain the president's presence at the city hall ceremony.

A resolution petitioning Roosevelt to take part in the Santa Ana cornerstone laying will be introduced at the next city council meeting, Smith said, and expressed the belief that the council will be glad to set any date for the program to suit the president's convenience on his western trip.

To Erect Platform

If the plan works out, Smith said, a large platform will be erected at Third and Main street, with loudspeakers and radio hookup, for use by the president so that thousands may be able to see and hear the nation's chief executive during his Santa Ana speech.

When President Roosevelt, a few weeks ago, promised Exposition officials at San Diego that he would come to California this summer and visit the fair, Smith and other local officials conceived the idea that he might be induced to stop for a brief stay in Santa Ana.

When it became known that the presidential party would drive from Los Angeles to San Diego by automobile, passing through Santa Ana, these same officials proposed that efforts be made to secure the president's co-operation in laying the cornerstone of the new city hall.

National Project

Such an event, they argued, would be fitting and proper, because the city hall is being erected as part of the national job-building program of the Public Work Administration, sponsored by Roosevelt.

Many people wondered why no plans were made for the cornerstone program, and proposals for participation were tabled for future consideration.

The building itself is moving along ahead of schedule, and will

SANTA ANA BLVD. EXTENSION TO FIRST STREET PROPOSED; ELIMINATE E. FIRST VIADUCT

EXTENSION of Santa Ana Boulevard from Main street to First street or beyond, east of the Southern Pacific tracks, with an underpass at the Santa Fe railroad crossing, to facilitate through truck traffic and prevent down-town congestion, is being investigated as an improvement proposal for the near future, it became known today.

Representatives of the State, it was said, will definitely put an end to the East First street viaduct proposal which, according to estimates, would be excessively expensive because of damage to many adjacent properties.

A movement is also under way, it was learned today, to extend Santa Ana Boulevard northward to Los Angeles by changing the name to Manchester, or Firestone, boulevard, now being completed along the S. P. tracks from Buena Park to Anaheim, to Santa Ana Boulevard upon building of the last remaining strip of roadway from Miraflores to West Anaheim.

Carrying out of this project, it he ready within ten days so that the stone could be set in place, it is understood. And yet, no official action has been taken upon plans for the ceremony. The city council, it was believed, would take this matter up at the council meeting last Monday evening, but still not a word was said.

Reason for Delay

The reason for this silence and inactivity on the part of the city council, it was believed today, has been due to their hope of Roosevelt's participation in the cornerstone plans, and a desire to delay action until Roosevelt's definite itinerary is learned, together with possibilities of securing his participation in the ceremony.

Influential politicians and personal friends of Roosevelt, it is believed, will be contacted to use their influence to get the president to stop in Santa Ana to lay the city hall cornerstone, but whether or not this has been done as yet could not be learned.

Senator William Gibbs McAdoo, Senator Hiram Johnson, Hamilton H. Cotton of San Clemente, and Stephen Chalmers of Laguna Beach, a personal friend of the president, it was believed, are among those whose good offices might be sought in this event.

At any rate, Santa Ana's plans for the cornerstone laying ceremonies are being held in abeyance, while city officials are hoping for word in the near future that the president will grace the event with his presence and his cooperation.

UPTON SINCLAIR IN THREAT TO RESIGN

LOS ANGELES, June 21.—(UP)—Upton Sinclair, founder of the "End Poverty in California" movement, threatened today to resign leadership of the "Epic" party unless it purges itself of "communism".

The gray-haired former Socialist who turned Democrat and ran an unsuccessful race for governor of California last fall, revealed that he had informed party leaders he will "withdraw from the End Poverty League" if Communists obtain control of the party.

Sinclair's announcement which threatened to split the Epic ranks, resulted in leaders calling for a ballot to determine whether the Epic forces would remain under Sinclair's "conservative" leadership or would sever connections with their founder and join a "United Front" movement—a coalition of Socialists and Communists.

orange juice demand that occurs during the late spring under normal or above normal temperatures. Yet Exchange sales, including loose oranges and exports, set a new record for any single month.

Average price per box in domestic markets was lower than the May average of the past four years, and also lower than a year ago. Total returns, f.o.b. California, due to increased sales, were more than last year, and 20 percent more than the 4-year average.

Prices in May were seriously affected by the unsatisfactory carrying quality that suddenly developed in naval oranges which had been picked following April rains. A considerable quantity showing heavy decay and also deteriorated rapidly after unloading. Values suffered accordingly, so that the usual premium for navels over all other oranges in the spring did not materialize until late in the month, when the condition of the fruit was much improved and prices then developed to be the best of the entire season. By this time, however, the crop was nearly all marketed, and the general average for the month remained considerably below the last season.

In answer to a question by Judge Cushman, Waley said he had been convicted of burglary in Idaho and elsewhere—“Red States Attorney Owen Hughes asked permission to develop Waley's criminal record and called E. J. Connelley, chief of the department of justice agents in the Weyerhaeuser investigation.

Connelley recited Waley's police and prison record which began in Aberdeen when he was a boy, and ended with the commission of the northwest's first major kidnapping, when Waley, his wife, and William Mahan, still a fugitive, kidnapped the young son of John Philip Weyerhaeuser. Tacoma lumber millionaire, and held him eight days until his father paid $200,000 ransom.

CHECK FINGERPRINTS

WASHINGTON, June 21.—The federal bureau of investigation revealed late today that it has received fingerprints and photographs of a man arrested in Jackson, Wyo., and is checking them carefully with the records of William Mahan, hunted kidnaper.

"Further than that, there is nothing to add," says a spokesman for J. Edgar Hoover, director of the bureau.

"You can say," she said, "That I haven't received any telegrams since I've been here."

In Seattle

The Rev. Rodeheaver, who is known to radio fans as "the singer of neighborly songs," reportedly is in Seattle attending a Christian Endeavor convention and the United Press learned that Sister Almee is planning a trip to the Pacific Northwest in the near future.

Another tip-off on the new romance came from Captain C. Whitney Sheely, Hollywood business representative of the Rev. Rodeheaver.

"Yes," he said, "my client did correspond with Mrs. McPherson and sent telegrams to her while she was making her world tour, but I know nothing of a romance."

Meanwhile Sister Almee marched off to Angeles temple where she mounted a platform and spent several hours shaking hands with members of her flock.

The evangelist only recently obtained legal permission to drop the Hutton part of her name. Court action was taken to restore the Almee Semple McPherson while she was on tour, a short time after the divorce from her former choir-leader husband, became final.

When they arrive at convention headquarters they will find 22 desks placed in a large quadrangle, and with guides and department heads in attendance in the gymnasium off the Pomona street entrance of the Fullerton Union High school campus.

At the 22 desks will be seated those who have placement for delegates, and who have general information concerning the affairs that are of interest to the conventionites.

The programs that will be delivered to delegates will contain maps of the city, maps of the high school campus, and other information.

This supplementary information service offered by the service clubs includes placement of a booth at the North Spadra road entrance, to catch traffic from Pomona valley, through Brea, and from Los Angeles and other points, maintained by the Kiwanis club.

Fullerton Rotarians will be on South Spadra road, between the city and Orangethorpe for traffic from that direction. Members of the 20-30 club will be at East Chapman for the Santa Ana canyon and points east traffic and Izaak Waltonians will be on West Commonwealth.

ROUTINE REPORTS

Routine reports were heard before adjournment. President Carl Mock presided.

THE UNION SERVICES TO OPEN

FULLERTON, June 21.—Continuing their custom of years in uniting congregations for night services during the summer months, the Ministerial association of Fullerton, the Rev. Francis E. Hawes, president, will start services July 28 at the Baptist church, and with the Rev. E. Dow Hoffman, pastor of the Fullerton Methodist church, in charge.

THE BAR ASKS BAN ON

MEXICAN DIVORCES

WASHINGTON, June 21.—(UP)—The American Bar association today asked the house judiciary committee to end Mexican mail order divorces in this country by forbidding use of the mails to solicit or obtain decrees without residence requirements.

Joseph F. O'Connell, Boston, member of the bar association executive committee and former congressman, testified the association had endorsed the Healy bill, which provides the penalties of a $5000 fine and five years imprisonment for using the mails for such devices.

For eight or nine years, O'Connell testified, "American lawyers have been harassed by advertisement of these 'lightning speed, mail order divorces' through the mail and newspapers.

JOHNSON WIDOW WINS ROUND IN COURT BATTLE

Mrs. Jessie E. Johnson, of Beverly Hills, referred to as Mrs.

Jessie Smith Engstrom in the will of the late Edgar Johnson, former Fullerton publisher, who questioned the legality of his marriage to the woman and repudiated the parentage of her daughter, Beverly, today won the first step of her court battle to break his will, when she was awarded securities of the estate with a face value of $4520.

Her contest of the $81,000 will, which limited her to the $25,000 which Johnson claimed to have invested in her Beverly Hills mansion, is now awaiting a hearing before the court, the date to be fixed when the matter comes before the court July 12.

Mrs. Johnson and her daughter were in court today as Judge J. O. Moncur, of Plumas county, granted her petition to have a $20 check and investment certificates of the State Mutual Building and Loan Association aggregating $4500 turned over to her by the special administrator, H. C. Head, who is also executor of the will.

The check, made payable to Edgar Johnson and Jessie Smith Engstrom, as were the certificates, were held in joint tenancy. It was stated, The administrator had declined to turn them over to Mrs.

Johnson without a court order. Judge Moncur held that, while the proceeding before the court was not exactly the proper proceeding, there was no question that ownership of the property was vested in Mrs. Johnson, and therefore granted the petition in order to obviate necessity for another hearing.

The court's order included the finding that Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Engstrom are the same person.

In his will, the publisher referred to her as Mrs. Engstrom, and stated that after their marriage at Ventura in 1932, he learned that she was already married to another man.

The will also stated that he had been forced by threats to sign a statement admitting parentage of her daughter, now 16 years of age, but that his statement was not the truth.

MERRIAM UPHELD IN FOLEY APPOINTMENT

Twenty-two members of the Orange County Fire Chiefs' association met in Buena Park last night, in regular session and discussed what could be done to get more convictions in arson cases in this county.

No definite action was taken, but the entire business session of the meeting was devoted to the subject. Many felt that persons charged with arson in this county had, in some manner, escaped the severe penalty which fire chiefs and firemen believe all arson offenders should get.

The meeting was in charge of Chief Al Tomblin, of the Orange fire department, who is president of the association. Virtually every town in the county was represented. The Santa Ana representative was E. C. Gates, fire marshal.

Preceding the meeting the firemen were served a chicken dinner by the auxiliary of the Buena Park post of the American Legion.

Twenty-two members of the Orange County Fire Chiefs' association met in Buena Park last night, in regular session and discussed what could be done to get more convictions in arson cases in this county.

No definite action was taken, but the entire business session of the meeting was devoted to the subject. Many felt that persons charged with arson in this county had, in some manner, escaped the severe penalty which fire chiefs and firemen believe all arson offenders should get.

The meeting was in charge of Chief Al Tomblin, of the Orange fire department, who is president of the association. Virtually every town in the county was represented. The Santa Ana representative was E. C. Gates, fire marshal.

Preceding the meeting the firemen were served a chicken dinner by the auxiliary of the Buena Park post of the American Legion.

LIKE GOLFERS, NIMRODS OF COUNTY MUST KEEP SCORES

Orange county nimrods must now start keeping diaries.

Like golfers, they must keep score of everything they shoot. And their card will be inspected by the state of California.

New regulations governing the issuance of hunting licenses were disclosed today by County Clerk J. M. Backs, who exhibited application blanks which provide space for listing the game killed by the applicant during the preceding year.

The state, it is explained, is using this method of gaining information regarding the number of game birds and animals killed each year. Such information is counted of value in preservation and propagation fields of activity.

"This will give a fine chance for hunters to do some bragging," observed Backs. "On the other hand if you issue a hunting license to a golfer, you may know that the score is going to be low. One thing I hope, that is that they do not extend this regulation to angling licenses. Think of the fish stories we'd get. And they'd want to mark down all those that got away."

Installation of officers will take place at the second meeting in July, it was announced. Last night's dinner and meeting were under the direction of E. J. Vosskuhler, William Maag and George Nash. There were 125 members in attendance.

Clyde Ashen, general chairman of the committee in charge of the fifth annual barbecue and picnic, which will be open to the public and will be held at the Sycamore picnic grounds in Santa Ana canyon on Sunday, July 14, reported that the plans are completed and are being met with enthusiastic response by members and the public.

Damage of $700 was caused in a truck-service station fire at 4:50 o'clock this morning, when three and one-half ton truck loaded with vegetables for food stores in Orange county tipped over and caught fire.

The accident happened at West Lincoln and Grand avenues, west of Anaheim, when a front wheel brake locked, it is reported, causing the truck to tip over into the A. H. Booth service station.

The state forestry truck from Orange, in charge of C. H. Alexander, was called to the scene and extinguished the blaze, preventing greater damage from the station's underground gas storage tanks.

One gasoline pump was broken as the large truck hurtled into the station. Damage to the truck was estimated at $350, with equal damage to the station itself.

W. L. King, driver of the truck, escaped unhurt.

TALK—
The new dealers have been doing considerable talking out land lately about enforcing anti-trust laws. The Justice department has announced it is going to enforce them strongly, now that the NRA is done. You may have been induced to suspect that the wrath of the federal prosecutor is aroused.

There is no need for any business man or trust-busting senator to wait around for this particular wrath to descend.

The inside on that situation was aptly described by a certain sub-cabinet officer, who recently said off-the-record:

"If the government were to enforce the anti-trust laws in the rigid way they have been interpreted by the courts, it would cost $100,000,000 a year and play havoc with about half of American business."

You may bet your last dollar that a mild and moderate policy will be pursued.

CHANGES

The only anti-trust changes to be expected in the next few months are those directly involving court decrees and codes.

An example is the old 1920 court decree against the American Column and Lumber Co., restraining it from any action to maintain or raise prices. That decree was modified officially when the NRA lumber codes permitted price fixing. Now that the NRA is gone, the decree will again be operative.

There are not many companies in this situation.

SHOW—

The government also may be expected to proceed against some large trust law violators, as it has in the past. Such prosecutions show the heart of the prosecution is in the right place. In fact, the new dealers even now can point to a record showing twenty-five anti-trust law prosecutions in the first two years and two months of its administration (under NRA) as compared with twenty-six in the four years of the Hoover administration.

But as for the now general suspicion that the new dealers will embark on a trust-busting campaign, it is out of the picture, and neither Attorney General Cummings nor the new deal is the trust-busting type (the utility bill to the contrary notwithstanding). The time is not ripe for such things.

CYCLES—

Most business men you talk to these days seem to have an indescribable inner feeling that things are better, that continued improvement is inevitable. There are no statistics to prove it. In fact, the standard business barometers (steel, autos) are continuing to fall under the seasonal summer heat.

But it has become suddenly popular for the first time in years to take an optimistic view of recovery. It is no longer popular to be a pessimist.

You will get the best examples from the stock market. It has shown continuous strength in recent weeks in the face of unencouraging news. It refuses to follow bad news. It has lost its fear.

Economists have written a hundred different excuses for the phenomenon. One is that purchasing power is being stimulated by federal activities, but such activities have not increased lately. The other excuses are no better.

What appears to have happened is that confidence and self-assurance are being re-established by a fatalistic anticipation that the end of the depression cycle has been reached.

CAUTION

Navy Secretary Swanson has written a personal letter to Rear Admiral Stirling, commandant of the Brooklyn navy yard suggesting that the admiral be a little more careful about the articles he writes for magazines. The letter was not a reprimand, only a suggestion.

What caused it was the fuss stirred up largely by friends of the soviet here about Stirling's last piece suggesting that European nations should stop quarreling among themselves and recognize the danger of a spread of communism. It was somewhat gratuitous advice.

There is a rumor around that President Roosevelt will put out a statement when congress adjourns, assuring business that the major reform program has now been enacted, that there will be no more.

The rumor is premature—but the situation it describes is not. It is a fact that he is keeping congress here to get his entire reform program out of the way. This coming fall will start a full-year in preparation for the elections.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

OKIEH—

Huey Long has suffered a lot of cloakroom kidding about his flowery allusions to the Bible and Frederick the Great. More cultured colleagues classify him as an intellectual buffoon. They don't know an unrevealed side of his makeup.

His two strangely contrasting heroes are the German warrior and gentle Job. He derides his economic theories from the Bible, which he reads constantly. His share-the-wealth program, he says, is based on the Hebrew custom of redistributing land every fifty years. He can spout off the chapters about Job from memory. From Frederick the Great he got his primitive theories of politics and government.

"I run Louisiana," he says, "like Frederick ran his army. When he ordered his marshals to capture Vienna, they warned it would violate a sacred treaty. You take Vienna; he ordered, and the professors at Heidelberg will find me

ORANGE COUNTY BAND FEATURED AT EXPOSITION

A joint resolution by Congress proposing a constitutional amendment is not submitted to the President for signature. The necessary two-thirds vote is equivalent to overriding a veto anyway. President Lincoln once approved a resolution proposing a constitutional amendment, but his action was superfluous. A president is not supposed to participate in the process of proposing amendments to the Constitution.

NOTES—

Justice Sutherland of the U. S. Supreme Court is visiting his birthplace in England...GOP speakers are stressing the increased imports of farm products...Rep. Parsons of Illinois is organizing a little group of lawmakers to press for bigger slices of the work-relief fund with which to buy up forest lands...Another effort will be made to put through state NRA laws.

GLAD—

When Vice President J. L. O'Neill of the Guaranty Trust was loaned to NRA as personnel officer months ago this summer predicted he would figure more prominently in the news later.

This doesn't mean—as you might infer—that the Guaranty Trust is privately running the country. Rather it's a tip-off that FDR's renunciation of the Blue Eagle as an instrument of policy is complete. Mr. O'Neill is an extremely able executive—but he's also a thorough-paced conservative. By no stretch of the imagination could you call him a New Deal enthusiast. He certainly wouldn't have gotten the job if a serious effort to resurrect NRA was in prospect.

Actually he was chosen because he knows more about the inner workings of NRA and its personnel than anyone else still connected with it. The biggest chore in the near future is to weed out the staff and select the fittest for retention. That's where O'Neill's talents will be most valuable. He still serves the nation by courtesy of the Guaranty Trust—which has renewed this "loan" to the government a second time. The informed predict he will be out of NRA and back at his own job by Labor Day at the latest. It's understood that both he and the Guaranty will be glad when he is allowed to return to private life.

PROTECT

Big business is awakening to a decided advantage in working out code agreements with the Federal Trade Commission rather than with the president as provided in the NRA extension act. All agreements with the White House must include a guarantee of collective bargaining with employees in line with Section 7A of the defunct law. The Trade Commission exacts no such requirement. You can see what this means to devotees of the open shop.

The fertilizer industry—which had been planning to submit a voluntary code for presidential approval—now changed its mind and will approach the commission instead. Other industries will follow the cut.

New York learns that a possible law to protect wages and hours is being actively discussed in inner Washington circles. It would forbid shipment of manufactured goods into states if the manufacturer does not comply with the labor standards of the state for which the shipment is destined.

The Webb-Kenyon act of prohibition day is a legal precedent. This would mean a lot if enforced—as the great consuming state of New York ranks near the top in progressive labor organization.

SILENCE

New York was amused by the outburst of gratitude for Secretary Morgenthau's assistance from Governor Jean Tannery of the Bank of France. Mr. Morgenthau has taken vast pains to shroud the operations of the Treasury Equalization Fund in utmost secrecy—and the French let the cat out of the bag by revealing that the fund has been selling dollars at a great rate. Actually the "support" we gave was far short of sensational.

We merely swapped dollars for gold in such quantities as to enable the bank to meet all demands for dollar exchange—and thus provided resources to "save" the gold standard. There was no sacrifice involved one way or the other.

It was. But the envelope was addressed to "White House, Washington, D. C." . . .

erual value of gold it used to be possible to buy a million dollars' worth of metal for $50,000 cash—5 per cent—and plenty of profit seekers did. But now you have to put up the full million.

The gold futures market-rich pickings for London financiers—is dead. The British aren't altruists.

They paid the price because the alternative of forcing France off gold with grating exports of the metal would have been even more painful.

CHALLENGE

The Securities Exchange Commission is running into stiff resistance in its efforts to regulate over-the-counter security dealers. Only about one-seventh of the dealers supposed to register have done so.

Many of the remainder intend to stick their tongues out at the Commission—and expect to get away with it.

Some of the over-the-counter boys are planning to contest the commission's authority in court. It won't prove much if they win except to their own line of business.

The commission's power to regulate the exchanges is not involved in the challenge.

BILL

New York is chuckling over an odd faux pas. A partner of the Stock Exchange firm of Whitehouse and company—which exchanged President Charles R. Goy as senior partner—recently was host at a sizable lunch party. The check amounted to a tidy sum and not having the cash handy he asked to have it mailed to him.

It was. But the envelope was addressed to "White House, Washington, D. C." . . .

CLIPPER PLANE LEAVES TODAY FOR ALAMEDA

HONOLULU, T. H., June 21.—(UP)—Pan American Airways trans-Pacific Clipper plane was assured smooth air lanes across the Pacific for its flight back to California today.

The take-off was set for 3:00 p. m. island time (5:30 p. m. P. S. T.) on a schedule which will bring the giant four-motored Sikorsky into Alameda airport within 18 hours after its departure from Pearl Harbor.

Capt. Edwin C. Musick, commanding the huge plane on its flights blazing a trail for trans-Pacific commercial aviation, indicated that he possibly would explore a different air route from the one over which he flew the plane on its first west-east flight from Honolulu in April.

The plane is returning to its home base in California from an 8000-mile round trip flight which took it to the Midway Islands, 1380 miles northwest of Honolulu, and the second ocean landing field of a route which commercial planes will traverse between the United States and China.

Little excitement attended preparations for today's flight, which to the crew of six men and to Honolulu residents already was a routine matter. In contrast to the "do or die" efforts of earlier pilots who gambled with death in attempting to fly the western ocean.

Walter Balsz, of Newhall, who was brought into court today on a bench warrant, because he failed to appear last Friday to explain why he had failed to pay $30 per month toward support of his child, in Orange, had to explain both matters to Judge Allen today. He said he had misunderstood the order to appear last Friday, and that he is now ready to make the delinquent payments of support money. His hearing was continued to July 5 to give him a chance to make payment.

C. F. Hayes pleaded guilty to passing a fraudulent check for $35 to John F. Vogel at Newport Beach April 13, and asked for probation. Hearing was set for July 5. Art East, who also passed a fraudulent check for $5 to E. B. Whitson, applied for probation. His hearing likewise was set for July 5.

George E. Higgins pleaded not guilty to a charge of having committed offenses against two young boys at Doheny Palisades. His trial was set for July 17 in department three.

Didrik C. Mustad, charged on two counts of robbery, in connection with a holdup in which W. G. Paul as the new chairman of the group, Mrs. Deakins will serve next year as Southern District Garden club chairman.

Suits were filed by Grace Durkin, sister of the actor, and Mrs. Anna V. Horner, mother of the writer. Each asked $250,000.

The complaints charged that John H. Coogan, Jackie's father, driver of the death car, was intoxicated when the machine plunged off a highway. It also was alleged he was driving between 65 and 70 miles an hour at the time of the crash.

Car of Tomorrow will be Grown, says Ford

Henry Ford believes that a great share of the materials for the automobile of tomorrow will be grown, not mined, as today. This Industrial Farm Exhibit at the Ford Exposition, San Diego, shows the close relation between farm and shop. For some time extensive research along these lines has been sponsored by the Ford Motor Company.

During 1935, the farmer will work to help supply materials for one million cars. Three million, two hundred thousand pounds of wool, requiring 800,000 sheep to produce it, is but one item in the long string that includes wood, linseed oil, hogs, cattle, hides, corn, castor oil, soy beans, molasses, cotton and many other products.

LARGEST CLASS GRADUATED BY ANAHEIM HIGH

ANAHEIM, June 20—Old-fashioned virtues still have a place in the world, Prof. Carl S. Knopf of the University of Southern California declared Wednesday night in delivering the commencement address for the class of '35 of Anaheim Union High school. Exercises were held at the city park theater which was well filled with parents and friends.

The occasion marked completion of high school for 180 students at the 35th commencement of the local school. The class was the largest in the school's history.

One of the graduates four members, Sam Marther, salutatorian, Harry Burnham, valedictorian, Katherine Ann McCullah and Dorothy Lee Suiter, were announced as recipients of the gold seal pins denoting life membership in the state scholarship group.

Diplomas were awarded by R. C. Cawthon, member of the board of trustees, assisted by Principal J. A. Claxes.

Choosing for his subject "Thinking Straight," Dr. Knopf urged upon the class that there is no such thing as getting something for nothing.

"Even at the risk of being dubbed old fashioned, I urge you to give an honest day's labor for an honest day's pay," he said. "I wish we might insure you that you will get the pay, but I urge that you hold up your end of this ancient moralistic code."

"Keep your integrity. The world will think you have a price, and will try to find that price. Stand on your feet. Hold your honor absolutely unpurchasable for money, fame or anything the world has to offer you."

"Make your word as good as your bond. We know that much of our troubles today come from failure of individuals to do that."

"Don't approach life with the philosophy of a gambler. There is no such thing as getting something for nothing, though often it may seem that there is."

"Build friends, not contacts. Friends are the greatest assets you can have. Let the building of friendships be first and make your business a by-product of your major pursuit."

"Make honest goods and describe them honestly."

"The world goes forward upon rules of mathematical accuracy and upon rules of cause and effect. If you don't believe that then you are wasting your time in laboratories and your school should stop laboratory instruction."

Lastly the speaker urged the young people to "build up an attitude of reverence and respect." The thought, like some of the others expressed, he said, sounds worn and old, and yet it has virtue as a guiding light in life.

The city park theater was filled to overflowing for the exercises, held at 5:30. Members of the class joined in the program, giving musical numbers and short addresses.

Willard Bath, class president, presented the class' gift to the school, Mr. Claxes accepting. Miss McCullah played a piano solo, "Liebestraum," by Liszt. Sam Marther gave the salutatory and Harry Burnham the valedictory. A mixed quartet consisting of Marion Gragg, Margaret Shea, Harold McNurlin and Willard Jaggers, accompanied by Dolores Sanguine, sang "Oh, Singing Land." Silelius, "Serenade" by W. J. Goodell was played by a reed ensemble.

Seal Beach To Seek Bids On New Plant Soon

JETTY PROJECT CONSIDERED AT NEXT MEETING

SEAL BEACH, June 21.—Bids on the projected new sewage treatment plant for Seal Beach will be called for in the near future, it was believed, following action of the city council last night in approving specifications prepared for the job by Engineer S. F. Currie, of San Bernardino. A resolution was adopted by the council by which wages on the project will be in accord with the PWA scale.

Plans for the Anaheim Landing jetty will be presented at the next meeting of the council on July 5. Currie announced. The three projects will be built at a total cost of approximately $182,000.

Street Superintendent Mechan was authorized by the council to purchase 54 new flags for decoration purposes on the Fourth of July. Mayor Elmer Hughes was authorized to enter into a contract with the Bolsa Chica Sand pits for a dumping ground at a rental of $8.50 per month.

A resolution was adopted asking the county supervisors for gasoline tax money to be used in street repair work. The application of City Councilman Ernest Muse for a 90-day leave of absence was referred to the city attorney.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

KATHARINE STRYKURST, beautiful, 20, falls in love with MICHAEL HATFIELD, owner of a riding school. Katharine's father is rich and her stepmother a snob.

ZOE PARKER, Katharine's friend, has an unhappy love affair and is saved from suicide by young DR. JOHN GAGE.

Oversharing two detectives ask for Michael's address, Katharine rushes to warn him, although she has not seen him since his engagement to SALLY MOON, local coquette, has been announced.

Michael refuses to go away unless Katharine comes with him. They are married in an obscure little town. Then Michael insists on returning to face the detectives. He learns he is heir to a fortune and title in Ireland.

Sally Moon, unaware of this, urges Michael to hasten the date of their wedding.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXVII

Michael shoots his head. "We can't do that, Sally," he said rather heavily.

"Why not?" All girlish imperiousness, she faced him. "Why on earth can't we? Anyone here can take charge—Jerry or anybody."

Michael's face darkened imperceptibly.

"Oh, don't be silly about it, Michael, darling!" trilled the girl.

"I'm not trying to boss you around. I'm just telling you how easy it would be." Her voice took on a crooning note. "Imagine a honeymoon at sea—and at Buenos Aires. I've always wanted to see it. Michael. We'd have glorious times."

Michael's face darkened imperceptibly.

"I can't—yet." With sudden clarity and horror he had vision of what the news might—what it certainly would mean—to Sally Moon.

Lady Carden—Sally as Lady Carden. Castles. Moats. A crest on her stationery . . .

Lord, he was in for it now, right enough!

If he could head off those detectives, if he could only prevent the news from leaking out before he broke the news of his marriage to this girl . . .

But how was it to be done? Frankly, Michael was daunted. He who owned to no fear in this world, quailed before the prospect of blazing feminine eyes, tears, reproaches.

Katharine. The name, the very thought of her brought a sparkle to his eyes.

"It's business I've got to see to tonight—right away," he improvised.

Now, he was a lucky man!

The train, after endless creaking and groaning, finally drew up reluctantly at the long concrete platform. Michael was the first to leap off when the door swung open. Up the ramp he strode, batless and handsome in his worn tweeds. Several homecoming, weary after a hot day on baking streets, turned enviously to watch him. There was something almost winged about his walk.

Katharine. His wife. It was all

NEW YORK, June 21.—"It must be the group of writers mentioned had aimed at. He'd be lost without the champion, they reasoned.

So it is with a great deal of satisfaction that Johnston views himself today, for he was one of the very few who expressed the opinion that Braddock would win.

On top of that, Braddock's smashing victory gives Johnston a new lease on life at the Garden, where he has made matches for four years. The Garden has Braddock signed for the first defense of the title. Thus the grip that the corporation has held on the heavyweight since it was organized by the late Tex Rickard remains unbroken.

Baer didn't exactly clown himself out of the heavyweight championship. He was punched out of it too.

And the Californian's downfall was a severe blow from the boxing viewpoint. Braddock was supposed to have been through.

Gus, the barber and plenty more, from Liverpool to Bangor, had visioned Baer as the hottest thing since Jack Dempsey. Now they are disillusioned. Maybe there aren't any more fighters, after all.

The one to five shot, the one to a thousand shot, the one to a million shot, won. There was little betting on the fight. The odds were prohibitive.

Braddock was a lonely citizen hustling to work on the Jersey docks in the early morning hours three months ago. Now he is the first thing in a heavyweight way that the Irish had to cheer about since Jim Coffey.

BOON TO GARDEN

The fight was of tremendous importance, and a terrific blow to one group of sports writers in New York, who virtually had run the once powerful Madison Square Garden corporation out of the cauldron industry.

Like everybody else, this group reasoned Baer would knock Braddock out in the process of fulfilling his Garden contract. Then the program was for Baer to meet the winner of the Primo Carnera-Joe Louis encounter next Tuesday, which is being promoted by the Twentieth Century club, in connection with a "free milk fund for babies." This setup would have completed the squeezing out of the Garden for the summer.

James J. Johnston, the Garden boxing promoter, was the fellow

SAILOR HIPPS BEATS LEMON: KEUP WINNER

Mister Al LeMon of Anaheim has often heard of the prowess of the United States Navy, but up until last night it was all hearsay. Today he has had first hand information regarding the subject and should be quite convinced that the gobs are real fighting men.

Matched in the main event of the Orange County Athletic club's festive program last night, LeMon signed would make any difference.

He received 17 1/2 per cent of $200 for repelling Baer, and appreciates the fact that Johnston yanked him off the Weehawken wharves and relief at $24 a month.

Issues may be gone inside. Even Braddock beat Baer because the defeated champion either didn't know the first rule in the boxing book, or could do nothing to keep the other fellow from taking full advantage of it. After all, the clowning which Baer went so far as to carry into the 15th and final round, didn't make much difference.

Braddock was instructed to jab with his left and keep moving to his right. That, it was figured, would keep the challenger off the range of Baer's devastating right, his most formidable weapon. Baer didn't have enough sense to feint with, or swing, or hook his way to win through three of the four rounds. The first round was LeMon was the more rugged of the two and the sailor was weary at the end, but he had scored enough points in the second and third rounds to win. Not that he slowed down any in the final seconds, but his punches lacked the gusto previously shown. The fight was one of the best main events seen at the north side park in several weeks, which adds support to the old adage in these parts that if you want to see a real fight, go get a sailor. The boys weighed 170 pounds.

Kup is Winner

In the semi-windup, Norman Keup, Anaheim, scored one of the few home town wins of the night when he beat Bill Johnson, Los Angeles negro. Johnson was not so inclined to battle and while Keup's efforts were not startling in brought him home the bacon.

The Yale junior varsity spurted across the finish line a scant six feet in front of the crimson. The winner's time was 9 minutes, 56 seconds.

Among the spectators was President Roosevelt who followed in the referee's launch in order to get a good view of his son and namesake who pulled the No. 4 ear in the Jayvee shell.

The finish was equally as breath-taking as that in the fresh race which the Eli yearlings also won by six feet after trailing for the first mile.

It was the second time the president had seen his son pull a losing oar. Franklin Jr. was a member of the losing Harvard freshman boat-load last year.

The Jayvee race completed, the crews drew together a few feet above the finish line and went through the traditional ceremony in which the losing oarsmen handed over their shirts to their conquerors.

The varsity race in which Yale is regarded as a slight favorite was to be rowed at 7 p.m., EDT.

The president returned to the naval yacht Sequoia to wait the climax contest of four miles downstream.

CHACON SHOWS SPEED

One of the best fights on the card was the fourth when Young Chacon, Los Angeles, easily outpointed Tony Gonyan of Anaheim.

Chacon showed more promise than any amateur seen here in some time and the management was quick to sign him for a re-match in the near future.

Other bouts were: Manual Markey scored a knockout over Albert Robinson in the third round.

Seconds threw in Robinson towel after he sank to the ropes from a right cross. It was Robinson's first fight and he was as green as spring onions. Buck Durhan lost a four round wrestle with Doyle Richards, the bout furnishing the comedy for the evening, and Jimmy Dugan, Ontario, outpointed Howard Anderson in the curtain raiser. The judges gave the decision to Anderson, however.

Track records which have little chance of surviving the attack of the greatest aggregation of college track athletes since the Olympic games of 1932 include the 100-yard mark of 9.5 seconds, the 220 at 20.8 seconds and the 120-yard high hurdle mark of 14.4.

First trials will start at 2:30 p.m. in Edwards stadium.

Giants, Yanks Run Away With Majors

CHICAGO, June 21.—(UP)—Play in the $3,500 Medinah open golf tournament got underway today with a field of 100 crack professionals and amateurs.

Toppling the list of entries is Johnny Revolta, Milwaukee, newly crowned Western Open champion. He will be opposed by such stars as Jimmy Thompson, Long Beach Calif., runner up in the National Open; Denny Shute, 1933 British Open champion; Tommy Armour, Harold McSpaden, Willie Goggins, Harry Cooper and a host of others.

The two leaders are fattening their percentages on their closest rivals. After taking three in a row from the St. Louis Cardinals, the Giants knocked off the second-place Pittsburgh Pirates yesterday, 6-2.

Eighteen holes will be played today and Friday with the final 36 holes scheduled on Sunday. The 60 low scorers at the halfway mark will be eligible for the final round.

After shutting out Seattle last night, Osborne returned to the pitching wars against the slugging Oakland team yesterday.

The final score was 5-2 for the Missions' second victory in three starts over the Vittmen.

Stories in STAMPS

By I. S. Klein

PHILOSOPHER of DESPAIR

A MISERABLE life, embittered by unsympathetic parents and depressed further by deafness, partial blindness, sleeplessness, and a body racked by disease, left only sorrow and despair to one of Italy's greatest poetic geniuses—Count Giacomo Leopardi. This unhappy son of an impoverished aristocratic family lived only 39 years, yet in that time he produced masterpieces of prose and poetry which placed him on equal footing with the greatest poets of history. His afflictions, coupled with his father's and mother's indifference, brought out in his writings all that was sorrowful and dispiriting. His genius was such that his work is considered classical.

In 1932, Italy issued a series of 12 stamps in commemoration of the Dante Alighieri Society, which had been formed to promote development of the Italian language and culture. One of these stamps was devoted to Count Leopardi.

NINE-PASSENGER CAR

That's what a 1935 trunk model Hudson or Terraplane Sedan can be if you wish to use the trunk space like this! There's room for six in those two wide "Three-Passenger Seats" inside—and the picture shows you that there's room for three more in the trunk.

This new method of proving that Hudsons and Terraplanes have the roomiest trunks in the industry comes from Buffalo, where three attractive members of the office staff of the local Hudson distributor made the demonstration.

The statement has been made and proved... that there is room for five large farm milk cans... or a regular steamer trunk, in the capacious trunks. But here's real human proof!

POPULARITY OF FAIR SHOWN IN MANY VISITORS

More than half a million visitors have passed through the gates of the San Diego Pacific International exposition since it opened its gates on May 29. It was announced today by Zack J. Farmer, managing director, and at last all the parts of the exposition have been completed.

Plans already virtually are completed for the entertainment of the second large trainload of Register guests, who will arrive at the fair grounds June 30, a week from next Sunday. Many have already qualified for the trip, and will be entertained for a full day at the fair entirely free of cost, by securing only four new subscriptions to the Register.

Preferences of the visitors who have passed through the gates thus far give an interesting insight into their likes during the first 18 days. The huge Palace of Foods and Beverages with its multiple displays has been crowded from morning to night with a total of 400,000 visitors. In contrast the notable exhibit of world famous paintings in the Palace of Fine Arts has made a constant stream of spectators for whom it has had a great popular appeal, 65,000 having passed through its doors.

House of Hospitality
The House of Hospitality, scene of the Exposition's social activities, has been visited by more than 35 per cent of the total visitors. Such educational exhibits as the mammoth display in the Ford building, the National Parks Illustration in the Standard Oil Tower to the Sun, the Federal and State buildings have been favored, Ford executives checking an attendance of 335,000, the Federal building more than 300,000 and Standard Oil 150,012.

The California State building has been visited by more than 250,000, and the Palace of Better Housing with its adjacent notable display of "Modeltown" exhibited by the Federal Housing administration, has entertained in excess of 250,000. The San Diego Museum has had 150,000, while the Fifth International Salon of Photography in the Palace of Photography and Science has been visited by 225,000.

The notable displays in the Palace of Education have been seen by 300,000, Palace of Travel and Transportation by 180,000 and the Palace of Electricity and Varied Industries by 250,000.

Among interesting special exhibits the Wells Fargo display has been seen by 75,010, that of the American Telephone and Telegraph company by 69,701 and the California Exposition Home by 51,000.

Magnificent Gardens
Contrasting with any previous exhibition is the fact that here for the first time the backs of the innumerable palaces have been finished and landscaped even more beautifully than their facades. It is estimated that more than 50 percent of the total of visitors have explored the magnificent gardens of this unusual portion of the fair. More are constantly discovering them.

Among the outstanding attractions off the Midway, to which a gate fee is charged the Motion Picture Hall of Fame has had 25,000 spectators, while the Globe theatre, in which the works of Shakespeare are played in a replica of their original setting, have been enjoyed by 21,000. The famous San Diego Zoo, with its remarkable collection of rare animals, has proven of interest to thousands.

The Midway itself, which extends for a mile from the old wes-

EXPOSITION GRANDEUR

GAINS IN FHA BUSINESS ARE EXPECTED HERE

A decided increase of FHA business in Orange County is expected as a result of the recent action of the administration in extending modernization credit for the improvement of properties to $50,000 under Title 1, according to James H. Berry, field representative in charge of Orange county.

Under the amended Act, the regulations governing modernization credit for improvement of individual homes, farm properties, churches, clubs, public buildings and similar properties remain substantially the same. The maximum limit for each such property is fixed under provisions of the Act at $2,000. This type of credit is being handled as a separate class and is being extended for the purpose of making additions, alterations, repairs and improvement of real property, including also such new construction as purchase and installation of machinery and equipment in the types of property mentioned in the preceding paragraph are eligible for modernization credit under the new regulations, provided they are "peculiarly adapted to the business conducted therein or necessary to the operation thereof."

All charges, including interest, for both types of modernization credit are to be determined by the financial institution and the applicant for credit, the rates to be as low as is consistent with the character of business in the particular territory in which the loan is negotiated. Under no circumstances can the interest, together with all other charges combined, exceed the equivalent of $5 discount per $100 original face amount of a one-year note to be paid in equal monthly installments.

Determination of the credit risk involved is left largely to the discretion of the financial institution advancing the funds, it was stated. This was substantially true under the old regulations.

Atmosphere of Gold Gulch through the myriad attractions of El Zocalo, has been visited by practically all of the half million who have come to the exposition, according to the best available check; an indication that America still likes its fun.

Railroad fare to and from San Diego, street car fare to and from the exposition grounds, admission to four concessions, admission to the zoo and box lunch at the zoological gardens, and cash for the evening meal will be furnished by the Register on its latest trip to San Diego, so there is no necessity of those making the trip to spend a dime.

It is, in truth and in fact, an all-expenses-paid visit to the exposition.

LOCAL SCOUTS SLEEP IN SNOW, CATCH MANY TROUT, AT ROKILLI

Thirty Orange County Boy Scouts, spending the week at Camp Rokill in the San Bernardino mountains, enjoyed the novelty of sleeping in the snow at the top of Mt. Anderson, 11,000 feet above sea level, according to the story brought to Santa Ana today by Harrison White, county Scout executive.

One of the Camp Rokill features this week were the classes in trout fishing, using flies which the boys tied themselves, and with which they had excellent luck, White reported. So successful were the Scout fishermen that they enjoyed trout breakfasts as a result of their fishing classes.

White asked today that boys wishing to go to Camp Rokill contact him at the Boy Scout office on North Sycamore street.

The snow-capped experience was enjoyed by a party which started ed out on a "hike of adventure" during which they visited Mt. Anderson and Dollar Lake. They traversed some heavily timbered country and saw many deer, which White reported to be more plentiful than ever before.

"This gratifying increase in business in the Santa Ana area," declares Jones, "is one of the most substantial records of progress made anywhere on the Pacific Coast. It serves as a good barometer of local conditions.

"Although in the retail business but 11 years, General Petroleum corporation is now rated as one of the leading major oil companies of the Pacific Coast. Through the adoption of policies of progressive selling and consistent advertising, this corporation is fast forging to the front.

"Quite logically, General Petroleum attributes a good share of its success to a regular and consistent advertising campaign in newspapers, a campaign in which the Santa Ana Register has played a major role."

The film fare at Walker's State theater today and tomorrow is featured by an outstanding western picture, according to Manager Vic Walker. The film is "Old Santa Fe" and the star is Ken Maynard, aided by his trained horse, Tarzan.

Many difficult feats of riding and shooting and some thrilling riding are presented on the screen in this fast moving action picture, Walker said today.

Other subjects on the program are a Popeye cartoon, "Be Kind to Animals;" another chapter of the speed thriller serial, "Burn 'em up Barnes;" a news reel and a comedy with lots of laughs, "Men in Black," featuring the Three Stooges.

The Kiddies club meets for the matinee at 1 p.m. tomorrow, with treats provided for all members present. Continuous programs are the order of the day Saturday and Sunday.

The lemon was introduced into the United States by Spanish adventurers.

PRODUCT OF IRON CRAFTSMEN

LOCAL FOUNDRY CASTS 2 DISCS OF LARGE SIZE

When it comes to making large metal castings and machining them, the Santa Ana Iron Works at 924 East First street ranks with the best, it is shown in the manufacture of two large discs, 6½ feet in diameter, which were being finished up today.

The patterns were made in the company's pattern shop, the discs were cast in the company's foundry, and then machined in the company's machine shop, using a large wheel lathe seldom found outside of the larger cities. It is a Santa Ana-made job throughout.

The discs are to be covered with stainless steel and mounted upon a heavy structural steel framework, also built by the Santa Ana Iron Works, and will be used for extracting fruit juices, it is understood.

A revival of business and industrial activity is shown by the constantly growing business of the pattern and machine shop and foundry, according to Mrs. M. A. Turner, the owner, with castings in aluminum, bronze, gray iron and white iron being made for all purposes, with the business extending into several adjoining counties.

— THE WEEKLY PANTRY SHELF —

NEW Books IN PUBLIC LIBRARY

BY VERA RAMSEY

Mrs. Thaddeus White, the Prince Der Ling, has brought the intimate history of China to many readers. Daughter of one of China's foremost statesmen, the late Lord Yu Keng, Princess Der Ling served for a time as first lady in waiting to the great Empress Dowager. Because of her father's position as ambassador to western countries, the princess has had an international education; and her knowledge of Chinese history and court life is as intimate as it is extensive. The result has been such books as "Old Buddha," "Two Years in the Forbidden City," "Kowtow," and her new book "Son of Heaven."

The last named relates for the first time the story of the colorful, dramatic, and tragic career of the ill-fated Chinese emperor Kwang Hsu. The emperor was born under evil omens. Early he became a helpless tool in the hands of the relentless ambitious empress dowager. When he was very young he was forced into a marriage with a woman he hated. From all of these unpleasant things, the emperor sought refuge in a great idyllic love and in plans for China's welfare and advancement. Intrigues and jealous hatreds put an end to his romance with the exquisite Pearl concubine—one of the most poignant of all love stories. His attempts at reform were thwarted by the old empress.

This is told by the only living author capable of unfolding from personal knowledge the story of this emperor who was her friend. In her account the span of a man's life passes before us against an exotic background gorgeous beyond belief.

Laura E. Richards' life has been spent with many famous people as her friends and acquaintances. Her own mother was Julia Ward Howe, the well-known author of the "Battle Hymn of the Republic." Her father, Samuel Gridley Howe, was noted in his day as a doctor, philosopher, and philanthropist. Laura E. Richards tells his story in her new book "Samuel Gridley Howe."

Samuel Gridley Howe was one of the handsomest men of his day. As a youth he fought with Byron in Greece. Although he never met the English poet, he was very much stirred by Byron's ideals. When Dr. Howe returned to Boston he took up his work with the blind and insane which was to win him an assured fame. Absorbingly interesting is the graphic account which Mrs. Richards gives of what Dr. Howe did for Laura Bridgman, the blind, deaf-mute.

Inspiring is the story of his romance with Julia Ward Howe and of his marriage to her and of their ideal family life. Woven into the biography is the account of the many friendships Dr. Howe formed through his personality and his work. There were friendships with Thomas Carlyle, Horace Mann, Oliver Wendell Holmes, Charles Sumner, Edward Everett Hale and many others prominent in history and literature. A striking period of Dr. Howe's life was that of his Civil war activities, when with his wife by his side, he did valiant service in the camps and hospitals.

Dr. Howe's life was a brilliant romance. His daughter, in writing of it, has captured the charm and the picturesqueness and beautiful accomplishment which characterized it.

The romance of hidden treasure has long been a subject of interest to A. Hyatt Verrill. In "Lost Treasure" the author tracked down the existing treasures in South and Central America and along the Spanish Main. In his new book "Secret Treasure," he does the same for the British Isles.

In Great Britain there has been ample opportunity and motive for the hiding of possessions. In the centuries that have passed many waves of warfare have inundated the small islands. The scope of this story covers England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales. It includes accounts of many fabulous treasures. There was the Florentine Galleon wherein was lost the gold of the Armada. Pepys writes about the treasure of the Tower of London. There are the traditional treasures like Dick Whittington's and that of Wallingford Castle.

With the energy of the old adventures, Verrill has tracked down each legend or rumor which came to his notice. With the thoroughness of a born researcher, he has delved into ancient records, journals and history in order to verify the facts. "Secret Treasure" is an exciting adventure into a field that is perpetually romantic. It is told in a delightfully vivid manner.

MAKE JAM WITH FINE FRESH FRUIT FLAVOR!

EASY RECIPE FOR STRAWBERRY JAM

4 cups prepared fruit
7 cups sugar
½ cup Certo

To prepare fruit, grind about 2 quarts finely. Then crush completely, one layer at a time, so that each berry is reduced to a pulp.

Measure sugar and prepared fruit into large kettle, mix well, and bring to a full rolling boil over hottest fire. To prevent scorching, turn kettle after may be added. Stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard 3 minutes. Remove from fire and stir in Certo. Then stir and skim by turns for just 5 minutes. Let cool slightly, to prevent discoloring fruit. Pour into jars. Makes about 10 glasses (6 fluid ounces each).

Get berries and Certo from your grocer today—2 quarts of berries make 10 glasses of wonderful jam... in less than 15 minutes after the fruit is prepared!

JUST read that recipe above! See how easy it is! Notice that only 2 quarts of berries make 10 glasses of jam.

All Certo recipes are just as easy and just as economical. With Certo, you boil jellies only ½ minute; jams only a little longer. None of your juice boils away. That's why you get so much jam or jelly... half again more than by the old, "long-boil" way.

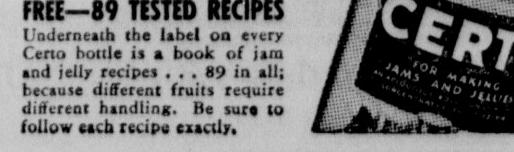

That's why, too, that jelly and jam are so much better tasting; short boiling retains all the natural flavor of the ripe, fresh fruit! (No "boiled-down" taste when you use Certo.)

And the whole job takes less than 15 minutes after the fruit is prepared.

So why don't you get berries, sugar and Certo right away! Put up a generous supply of jam and jelly to last the rest of the year. Think how good they will taste next winter in tarts, puddings, jelly rolls and ice cream!

Certo... the pure fruit pectin that makes jelly making so easy... is a product of General Foods. You can buy it at any grocer's. G.F.Corp., 1935

FREE—89 TESTED RECIPES
Underneath the label on every Certo bottle is a book of jam and jelly recipes... 89 in all; because different fruits require different handling. Be sure to follow each recipe exactly.

GOOD GARDENING

By Mrs. H. Cardosa Sloan, Corona Del Mar
Being sound advice and interesting comment on what to plant and how to care for Orange county gardens.

DAUGHTERS OF THE SUN

It occurs to me that perhaps in our garden columns lately we have been giving too much attention to the shade-loving plants and rather neglecting the sun-worshippers—those flowers that rejoice in the sunshine from the moment "Phœbus' gins arise. His steeds to water at those springs On chaliced flowers that lies"—until the chariot of the sun crashes over the rim of the western horizon, the sun-god flings behind him treasure of gold and rubies and pearls, of chrysoprase, amethyst, and turquoise, which shatter into color against the evening sky, reflecting the glory of his passing.

The plants which revel in the full sun, some require rich soil and plenty of water. Others will get along on a minimum of water, but need good soil. Still others aren't so particular about the soil but insist on a fair measure of water. Again, there are plants which will flourish not only in full sun, but in a dry and thirsty land where no water is, and, for that matter, very little nourishment. So it will readily appear that a successful garden depends not so much on an ideal situation as upon an intelligent choice of plants which will accept such conditions of sun and soil and moisture as we have to offer.

Sunny Garden Plot

Suppose we are considering our home garden plot, and that this plot lies open to the full sun; has a rather poor soil, and a meager supply of water. Can we have anything which may truly be called a "garden"? Indeed, yes. We may plant with confidence one of the loveliest flowers that grows—Iris Germanica—the German, or "bearded" Iris. This Iris likes full sun, it is utterly indifferent to poor soil, it prefers that soil dry, it has no appetite for fertilizer, and it abhors cultivation or tending of any sort. All it asks is to be planted and then let alone! Of course, for your own peace of mind, you will have to keep the snails and slugs away, and cut off faded flowers and withered leaves, and every three years or so divide the clumps. If you feel you simply must offer the hospitality of some refreshment, you may work in a little bonemeal, but you really don't need to.

Much attention has been given the Bearded Iris of late years, and there is an infinite variety, flowers of exquisite form and color, many delicately fragrant. By careful selection of varieties one may have Iris in bloom over a period of many months, and if I had a garden location of the kind we are considering, I should go in strong for this beautiful flower.

Gardens of Lavender

And, in such a garden, I would be able to have another of my best-loved plants, the lavender. And I should have it in masses—long borders of it such as one sees in English gardens, symmetrical mound of soft grey foliage, the myriad of flower stems spiraling upward in a delicate mist of lavender bloom. And on sunny mornings in late summer I would cut these stems and let the blossoms dry, and in due time all my household linens would smell, oh, so sweetly, of lavender. And how my friends would envy me that border of lavender which had grown in such loveliness without any effort on my part, while they struggled with contrary delphinium, and picketed slugs off pansies, and beetles off dahlias, and sprayed and dusted and fertilized and watered their rose gardens. Yes, a beneficent Providence was mindful of the law of compensation when Iris and lavender were created.

Then for a low border there would be portulaca, which from June to September would be covered with flowers of the most exquisite texture and richness of color. The finest portulaca I ever saw was growing right in the middle of a ranch driveway. A private road, to be sure, but as hot, dry, dusty, sunbaked bit of road as ever you saw. The portulaca, self-sown, was oblivious to any lack in its location, indeed, seemed radiantly happy there. Well, portulaca is a relative of our common "pig parsley" and you know what that will stand.

Bartonia Thrives

There is a native California annual which thrives in poor soil, Bartonia, "Blazing Star." The flowers are a brilliant satiny yellow, fine for cutting. The plant grows about two feet tall.

Then there are the Gaillardias, exceedingly tolerant of poor soil and drought, excellent plants, growing from one to two feet high, of spreading habit, blooming from early summer to late fall, large daisy-shaped flowers in rich tones of bronze, maroon, brown, crimson, red, splendid for cutting. Nothing better for our "poor" garden.

That charming annual, Viscaria, I have seen growing in sun and poor soil, with only a minimum of water. It blooms from June to November, grows a foot or so high, of branching habit, covered with pretty little flowers in white and soft shades of red and blue. Planted in masses the effect is very pleasing.

Beautiful Flowers

Two really beautiful flowers, fine enough for anybody's garden, are the lupin and the penstemon. Any-one who has seen some of our native lupins growing magnificently on dry slopes and barren wastes, or the splendor of the wild penstemons covering acres of hot, dry, burned-over mountainsides, will realize what these flowers may mean in our dry garden.

The moss verbena is fine for close spreading effect, with a profusion of purple-blue flower heads.

Everybody knows that the nasturtiums flower best in poor soil, and no flower that grows given more generously of cool green foliage and abundant and brilliant bloom.

And do you remember—not "Sweet Alice, Ben Bolt," but a gal of quite different temperament, "Bounding Bet" (Saponaria officinalis). A husky perennial of erect growth, covered in summer with flowers of white or a slightly faded pink, which are sweet scented, especially at night. This plant of old time will grow in the poorest soil.

The yellow marguerite will make a spreading, bushy growth, always in bloom. I like the flowers for cutting, and I like the wholesome, pungent odor.

Sea Holly Is Hardy

A plant of rather rough appearance, yet with considerable architectural beauty of stem and leaf, "Bounding Bet" (Saponaria officinalis).

A husky perennial of erect growth, covered in summer with flowers of white or a slightly faded pink, which are sweet scented, especially at night. This plant of old time will grow in the poorest soil.

The yellow marguerite will make a spreading, bushy growth, always in bloom. I like the flowers for cutting, and I like the wholesome, pungent odor.

For a little edging or border hedge lavender cotton (Santolina) is just the thing. Dense grey foliage, delightfully aromatic, absolutely hardy, with little dull gold button-like flowers. This plant needs frequent shearing to keep it trim and neat, but with this attention it is most satisfactory, good to look at, and smells so good.

When it comes to shrubs there are a number adapted to our purpose. Chief among these are the Rock Roses (Cistus). There is the Brown-eyed Rockrose, which all through spring and summer is covered every morning with pure white flowers, about three inches across, a spot of crimson at the base of each petal, and a fuzz of pretty yellow stamens. A newer variety, C. purpureus, is rose purple in color with a deep maroon spot at the petal base. Same habit as the other, and both are excellent plants for dry, sunny locations.

Dry Garden Flowers

The Cassias are also splendid for our hot, dry garden. There are several varieties, all about eight feet tall, foliage more or less silvery grey, and flowers yellow. C. tomentosa blooms in early spring; C. grandiflora will give you quantities of brilliant yellow flowers in fall and winter; C. artemesidea has fragrant flowers.

THE TINYMITES

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KENNER

Kind Mrs. Rip had fixed a meal she knew would make the Tinies feel real good. It was a lot of fun to watch the youngsters eat.

"Oh, my, I just love homemade bread, and yours looks dandy," Doty said. "I'll put some of your jam upon it. What a wonderful treat!"

The meat is what looks good to me," wee Coppy added. "I can see where I will have to watch myself, or I will eat too much."

"And there's a tasty frosted cake. A great piece of that I'll take. Until we've finished all else though, we really mustn't touch."

"That is dessert, and it comes last. Be careful, lads, don't eat too fast." "Aw, practice what you preach," snapped Windy. "We know what is right."

And so the Tinies ate and ate, till too much made them hesitate. Wee Duncy jumped and said, "I cannot eat another bite."

He wandered off from all the rest and thought, "I'll do my very best to wake up Rip Van Winkle, so he'll get some good food, too."

(The Trouble Tots give Duncy a surprise in the next story.)

THE OIL CONTROVERSY

Out of the contest over oil bills there has come a very fierce controversy. Supervisor N. E. West interested himself in an oil measure which would have given to the county certain royalties from oil taken from the tideland drilling and would have given more to the state in the end, and as much to Huntington Beach, as she will get in present conditions.

This measure was backed by the Gilmore Oil Company. It was fought by the Standard Oil Company which is supposed to be the chief beneficiary of the measure that did pass. The bill which would have granted a larger return to the state and county passed the house by a substantial majority and in the hands of the senator who was to lead the fight on its behalf it "blew up" over night.

It is one of the most inexplicable and strangest episodes that we have ever observed occurring in a state legislature. The alleged leader for the measure advised the senate to vote against the bill or the provisions in it that would have given these benefits to the county and state. This particular senator, we understand, did not remain for the closing hours of the legislative session. Most of those who are expected to vote for the bill either failed to vote or voted against it in the senate. Rumors were ripe, it appears, concerning a large amount of money used in the closing hours and declarations and insinuations have been made by each side against the other that each oil company or those representing it poured out money rather profusely.

What the facts are we do not know, we doubt seriously if any investigation will prove or disprove anything. If anybody was bribed it isn't likely that either the bribed or the briber is going to acknowledge it. And there is never a third party present when the money or anything of value passes. Bribery has always been a very hard thing to prove if neither the briber nor the bribed is laying for the other and has not been double-crossed and even in such case the briber usually suffers the double-crossing rather than confess his own crime.

Financial interests running into large figures have a great deal of influence with many legislative bodies. In many cases they have helped elect, if they have not been responsible for the election of the representatives. They do not need, therefore, to actually commit bribery to get the votes from their friendly group; they already have them. It is when another big financial concern comes in to fight for the share of the melon, which usually, as in this instance, belongs to the people, that money is reputed to flow.

The betrayal of a trust of this character is one of the lowest crimes that any public official can commit, but it should be borne in mind that the briber is equally guilty with the bribed and it is that serious a crime that all people should be exceedingly cautious and morally certain if not legally certain before imputing any such heinous offense upon any official.

No one as far as we know has charged any of the legislators from Orange county with this crime. If this were true, it would be a case for the district attorney of either Sacramento or Orange county instead of a committee of the legislature to investigate. We doubt if anything of importance will come out of the investigation other than the rumors of money used and of strange actions, but in the meantime the people of Orange county will get no special benefit from the sale of this oil and the state will get much less than it deserves and only a little over half as much as it would have gotten under the other bill.

Big financial interests know exactly what they want and they go after it. The representatives of the people are pulled and hauled between these interests and no program seems to be presented that is primarily for the state and secondarily for the oil companies. An open lease for this property to the highest bidder should have been the lease to have been insisted upon by all of our representatives.

We are persuaded that both our senator and our representative from the southern part of the county were in favor of such a measure as was suggested and in lieu thereof were in favor of the Gilmore Oil Bill as the best in sight. The failure of our senator to vote after the author of the bill had advised the people to vote against it is certainly explainable.

THE CHURCH AND THE PROFIT MOTIVE

A year ago, the general council of the Congregational-Christian churches passed a resolution condemning the profit motive in economic society as unchristian. Up to that time, the profit motive was largely an academic question confined to experts and economic students in college class rooms. Now it has become a question for discussion by the common man on the street, and reams of paper have been printed to define and interpret the profit motive.

Without entering into a discussion or an interpretation of the profit motive, it is timely to say that when the church makes a pronouncement on any question, that question immediately is brought out into the open. People who had never heard of the profit motive a year ago, at least know that there is such a question today. And they have a notion that in some way it is vital to them.

Needless to say, the church has not brought it out as an economic question primarily. The economic comes under its review only when it invades the moral realm, which is the distinctive realm of the church. Because of the resolution passed by the Congregationalists a year ago, other religious bodies have taken the question up, until it has been lifted into the moral realm.

It was quite natural that such a resolution should provoke hostile criticism within the church. But that has always been the case.

Thoughts On Modern Life

BY GLENN FRANK

ON AMENDING THE CONSTITUTION

I doubt seriously that Mr. Roosevelt will make constitutional reform a basic issue in the 1936 campaign.

But I have been enormously interested in the reactions to the possibility of such an issue.

I have seen liberals throw their hats in the air over the possibility.

Here at last, they seemed to say, would be a real issue—really adjusting the forms and functions of government to the new needs of a new age.

Such liberals are, I think, mistaken. A reform of the constitution in the direction of giving the federal government greater and greater power over the nation's business and industry might mean anything.

It might mean the rankest of reaction.

It might mean a progressive liberalism of policy.

It might mean utterly irresponsible radicalism.

Everything would depend upon the man or men at the head of the government in the years ahead.

All down the ages when men have sought to centralize power it has been on the assumption that the power would be used for high ends.

But there is no guaranty that it will.

Lodge enough power over the nation's enterprise in Washington and we can swing to the Fascist right or to the Communist left with equal facility according to the mind and purpose of the leadership at any given time.

The Fathers, for all their faults, were wise in sacrificing some efficiency in government in order to set up safeguards against a tyranny of the state.

There is life in the American Tradition yet. It may turn out to be more progressive than Communism and more efficient than Fascism when the historic books are balanced.

STILL SAFE

Faith wavers even in the most steadfast soul. These days do much to shake our stoutest beliefs, and when one has started the day by reading the headlines of the morning paper one can be pardoned for feeling a few quivers. A youth, commits a horrible crime. The daughter of a proud house slopes and brings sorrow and disgrace upon it. Small boys break in and steal. Government appropriations for education are cut to the vanishing point. The morning mail brings in a host of complaints, pleas, murmurs regarding the deeds of the new generation. One's faith wavers. Maybe the nation is set for destruction.

Down the street marches young Malcolm, four years old. His healthy young legs in half socks, carry him proudly. There is power in that straight back, intelligence in those clear gray eyes. "Nice youngster," I think, and sigh at the vision of his future. Dark, but safe.

His arm lifts and swings sharply, and an object as big as an egg strikes the windshield of a passing car. The driver stops, backs slowly toward where young Malcolm stands waiting, his back straighter than ever, his eyes fixed on the driver. I stand by and watch.

Very gently, so gently that his voice is a caress, the driver says: "Why did you throw a stone at me?"

"It wasn't a stone, mister." "What was it?"

"A piece of candy I was throwing away. I did not mean to hit you."

"Oh! Don't throw things like that, son."

"No sir, I didn't mean to."

The driver smiles, and drives off. I speak to Malcolm. "You are a brave, good boy to stand by and tell the truth when you made a mistake like that. Good boy."

Malcolm looks up at me. There is the least quiver in the firmly shut lips, the barest shadow of mist in the steady eyes, and I notice the pulse beat in his throat. I raise my hat to him and he to me, and we go on our ways to school.

The headlines vanished into the nothingness. All doubts of the courage, the nobility of youth vanished along with them. My head listed, my backbone straightened,

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

A LAY OF DESPAIR

On hearing that the germs in one's system develop personalities when they fall ill.

If I suddenly start to steal horses,
Or endeavor to break into banks;
If I follow dark devious courses
And play silly and yokelish pranks;
If, instead of intelligent reading,
Dime novels I daily devour,
It isn't through lack of good breeding—
It's a sign that my nerves have gone sour.
Embattled bacilli are waging a fight
Which continues far into the night.

They are lurking down deep in my system,
And are constantly hopping about,
In vain do I seek to resist them;

I simply can not drive them out.
I mean to be kindly and gentle,
And possess all the calm of a sage;
But instead, I am temperamental
And easily fly in a rage.

Try as hard as I will, I can never defeat
The germs in the food that I eat.

I can pore over tomes without number,
The works of great men I have read;
But they all only lull me to slumber,
I cannot recall what they've said.

No doctor will ever assure me,

That a healthier man I may be,

They say there is no hope to cure me.

While my system is all out of gear,

And I know as I sit here, played out and agast,

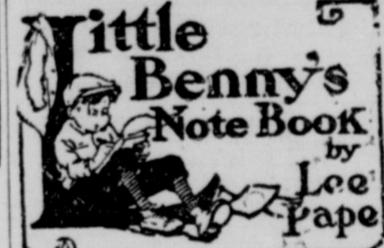

That the microbes will get me at last.
